SERVICE CHARGE IS HELD LEGAL

By Highest State Court In Leading Rochester Case—Two of Justices Dissent.

The court of appeals by a divided court decided on Tuesday that the corporations to consumers on the monthly "service charge" by gas basis of each meter installed is a legal charge and may not be restrained by cities or by the public service commission.

The decision of the court was rendered in what is known as the Rochester case, which was a proceeding brought by the city of Rochester against the Rochester Gas & Electric Company. The gas company won its contention before the public service commission, lost before the appellate division of the supreme court for the Third department and now gets a final decision in its favor by the decision of the court of appeals. The Rochester case has created much interest in Kingston, particularly in view of the litigation in which the Canfield administration engaged with the Kingston Gas & Electric Company over the increased gas rates which were granted to the company.

On the night of December 31, a few hours before the Canfield administration went out of office, the common council accepted a proposition made by the Kingston Gas & Eletric Company by which a new schedule of gas rates proposed by the company was accepted by the city and in consideration of the new rates the city agreed to discontinue the certiorari proceedings against the company which were then pending in the courts. The new schedule of rates made a reduction of ten cents per month to each customer, and the question of service charge was eliminated.

The Rochester gas corporation obtained permission from the public service commission, second district, to make a service charge of forty cents a month to each consumer in addition to the rate of $1.30 per thousand cubic feet of gas. The legality of the orders of the commission was presented to the appellate division of the Third department as a submitted controversy and that court ruled that the service charge was in effect a rental charge for a gas meter which was prohibited by law, and that a charge for "service" was the imposition of a higher rate for gas.

The court of appeals, however, holds the service charge to be a legal charge, and in the majority opinion of the court Judge Cardozo says:

"The expenses of a gas company are incurred partly in manufacture and partly in distribution. Its income must be adequate to reimburse it for the one outlay as for the other. Expenses of manufacture may be apportioned among consumers in proportion to the quantity of gas consumed. Expenses of distribution in their division may follow other lines. Some remain constant whether consumers are few or many. Others increase or diminish at a uniform rate with the number of the patrons. A service charge is an attempt to make the incident of the burden as wide as the incidence of the benefit. From all the items included in the cost of distribution it segregates and divides per capita those dependent upon numbers. Such items there always are.

"In the absence of a service charge or a similar device, there is the benefit of facilities which otherwise would be needless, without the the burden of contributing to the cost of maintaining them. The householder who closes his dwelling for the summer, and pays nothing in the interval, shifts the cost of maintenance incurred in his behalf to the householder whose dwelling is open throughout the year. The occupant who consumes something but not enough to pay his share of the expense is carried by his neighbors when rates are increased to compensate for profitless accounts. Sometimes this result is avoided through the device of a minimum bill, which differs from a service charge in this only that the charge is absorbed and disappears when the minimum is reached. For the man who does not take anything, or less than the amount prescribed, the two devices are the same. Each is an expedient for maintaining the equilibrium between service and requital.

"The law imposes the duty to establish connections for the householder who demands them, but it does not impose the duty either to install or to maintain gratuitously. If he demands the facilities with the added expense that follows, he thereby invites a service and must be numbered among those for whom service is maintained.

"A service is not something in addition to the price that would otherwise be fair and reasonable. It enters into the price of the commodity, not as an element of addition, but as an item of deduction. In the case at hand, the finding is that if the service charge were dropped the price of gas, now $1.30, would become $1.45. The revenues of the company are the same whether rates are computed on the one basis or the other. The variance is solely in the distribution of the burden."

Judge Pound wrote a dissenting opinion in which Judge Hogan concurred.

Legion Worked Out Present Plan at Request of Congress and Cost Is Exaggerated—Legion Will Never Present Any Further Demands.

(By Hanford MacNider, National Commander of the American Legion.)

(Copyright 1922, by International News Service.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 1—The American Legion is asking that the adjusted compensation bill be passed, wants it clearly understood that this legislation originated with congress.

At the request of congress the legion worked out from a great number of suggested plans, the present five-fold compensation bill. The Legion feels that by such constructive features as those which embody farm and home aid, vocational training, land reclamation and settlement and paidup insurance, recognition from the government of the veterans' services would add to the returned service man's ability to become a more constructive citizen. The Legion still feels that way.

The adjusted pay, or cash features, allowing forty per cent less than any of the other options, was framed to take care of the man who, because of unemployment or ill fortune, would not be able to take advantage of the others. The payments of $50 once every three months certainly don't form as desirable compensation compared to the great benefits so well defined in the names of the others.

The cost to the government has been in a great many financial journals greatly exaggerated. Were half of the men to choose a cash feature it would not exceed four hundred million dollars the first year. This is no extraordinary expenditure on the part of the government. What is more, the money is not going to vanish. It naturally will be turned into the business of the community. And with that put into homes, farms, education in skilled professions and employment, which land reclamation calls for, it is all going to help build up the economic fabric of the nation.

The Legion feels this to be a just obligation. The offering of a man's life and his services with the colors at least should receive equal consideration with the services of contractors, manufacturers, and shipping interests. These obligations have been or are being paid and they are undoubtedly proper debts, but the obligation to the veteran still remains and will remain until some adjustment is made. Whenever and wherever the question has been put to the people, they have answered in a way no one could misunderstand.

In asking for the passage of this legislation, the American Legion feels it is only urging the fulfillment of promises liberally made, but hesitatingly carried out. We believe the nation wants the great ex-service population to feel that they deserve and shall have fair play, and a square deal.

It is safe to say that further demands never will be presented by the American Legion. The proposition of adjusted compensation came from congress. The American Legion feels that for the good of all concerned it should be carried out.

CONSIDER NEW TAX FOR BONUS

But Congressional Committee Won't Tell What It Is Until Complete Agreement Is Reached—Legion Heads Urge Haste.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Mar. 1—A new tax to meet part of the soldier bonus payment, was under consideration today by Republican members of the house ways and means committee. The amount it falls short of paying is to be taken from the general treasury.

Dark secrecy guards the size and character of this tax. The tax chasers are to afraid of losing it to mention it fearing that an enemy may learn its character and snatch it from their grasp. They were hopeful that an agreement could be reached today when their plan would be announced.

The work of the committee is being hustled by representatives of the American Legion who are camping on the job. National Commander Hanford Macnider and vice chairman John Thomas Taylor of the executive committee urged members today to get the bonus bill out with as little delay as possible.

Chairman Fordney is anxious to oblige but other members of the committee seem backward about taking a fateful step in the direction of a tax. It was admitted today they were headed that way though moving with timidity and trepidation. There is no certainty their courage will not fail.

It is understood the president has made concessions and is no longer insisting on his "no sales tax, no bonus" ultimatum, but he is steadfast in opposition to any mention in the legislation of sale of British or other foreign bonds to make bonus payments. A number of suggestions were put before the committee to overcome this difficulty.

Experts of the adjutant general's office of the army were heard by the committee on estimates as to the length of time it would take to get in shape the records of the ex-service men necessary to make payments of the bonus or issue insurance certificates. Time is a factor in the bonus situation. Many congressmen are insisting that bonus payments shall begin not later than next October.

FLOATED HOUSES ON FLAT BOATS TO CATSKILL VILLAGE

Knickerbocker Ice Company Rents Migratory Dwellings.

The Catskill Mail says:

It isn't every town in the country that can call on a river flowing by its door to help out on the housing situation. The Knickerbocker Ice Company is to be congratulated on its ingenious plan for floating houses down the river to Catskill and setting them up on our residence streets for the benefit of eager families. "Eager" is right, too! The Knickerbocker people brought down two houses last year on flat boats from points up the river and set them up on lower Main street fully repaired and equipped for housekeeping purposes. These houses, of course, were former residences for the employes of the company at its ice house properties. These houses were rented before they got to Catskill. The same result has been shown in the plans of the Knickerbocker Co. to move the dwelling house on Rogers Island to Catskill and set it up in the spring. The house is already rented although the plans for its removal must await the opening of navigation.

AWARD OF $36,808 INSURANCE TO WIDOW.

The court of appeals Tuesday affirmed a judgment of $36,808 in favor of Mrs. Edwin W. Ensign of Hudson against the Travelers Insurance Company on a policy issued on the life of her husband. Ensign was an undertaker at Hudson, and on December 12, 1918, he went to his summer camp at Lake Charlotte. The camp was found burned and a body found in the ruins was claimed by Mrs. Ensign as that of her husband. The defense of the company was that Ensign had placed a body from his morgue in the camp so that his wife could collect the insurance of about $100,000 on his life. P. C. Dugan of Albany represented the company.

De Valera Men Obstruct.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Dublin, March 1—Adherents of Eamonn de Valera, the Republican leader, continued their obstructionist tactics when debate was resumed today in the Dail Eireann. They sought vigorously to regain the ground lost yesterday when a resolution to censure Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail, was defeated by six votes. Griffith is a "moderate."

BURGLARS FOILED AT PRATTSVILLE

But Patrolman Houlihan was "Treated Rough"—Post Office Door Partly Jimmied When Desperadoes Were Discovered and Fled.

The robbery of Postmaster Peter Elmendorf of Old Hurley Saturday night by two masked highway men who took about $60 of his grocery store receipts but did not touch any government funds, was followed Sunday night by an attempt to rob the post office at Prattsville, Greene county. Whether the Prattsville robbery was attempted by the same highwaymen who robbed Postmaster Elmendorf is a matter only for speculation as there is no clue regarding the identity of the men who committed either crime.

The Prattsville post office burglary was attempted about 11:30 o'clock Sunday night and was discovered by Patrolman Edward C. Houlihan, of the New York board of water supply police, who in passing the post office noticed a man who apparently was trying to jimmy the side door.

The night was dark and as Prattsville streets are not lighted Patrolman Houlihan quietly approached the burglar when he suddenly received a kick in the stomach from someone whom the darkness prevented him from seeing, and at the same time a revolver was fired at him at close range, the bullet passing through his cap.

When Officer Houlihan was able to pick himself up from the street the desperadoes had fled. He was unable to tell the direction they took or how many there were or whether they had made a getaway by automobile or on foot. He gave an alarm and three members of the police force tried to find the trail but could not. The burglary may have been attempted by workmen engaged in the Shandaken tunnel construction who did not have far to travel.

Examination showed that the lock on the front door of the post office had been partly jimmied and that burglar had been interrupted by Padoor was well advanced when the the process of jimmying the side trolman Houlihan.

Smith and another, growing out of an automobile accident. HABEAS CORPUS RETURNABLE ANYWHERE IN STATE

Habeas corpus writs can be made returnable in any part of the State, and do not have to be heard in the county where the institution is situated, Justice A. H. Seeger of the supreme court held in a decision handed down Tuesday in White Plains. The decision was made in the case of Vera Van Buren, who applied for a habeas corpus to get her out of the Bedford Reformatory. Justice Seeger set March 11 for the hearing on the writ at Newburgh. The attorney general in opposing the writ argued that it must be made returnable in the county in which Bedford is situated. Had this point been carried no more prisoners could have been taken to New York from Sing Sing on writs of habeas corpus, but their cases would have had to be heard in Westchester county.

Y., and a Carnegie, Penn., physician, has driven his car 300,000 miles. The list of cars with a record of more than 200,000 miles is too long for publication and is made up of cars owned in all parts of the country.

HONEYMOON OF PRINCESS BEGINS

Lascelles and Bride Secluded at Weston Park—She Shows Same Home Making Traits as Mother.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Shifnal, England, March 1—Amidst the beautiful hills and dales of Shropshire, Viscount Lascelles and his royal bride, the Princess Mary, began their honeymon today. They are living quietly at Weston Park, seat of the Earl of Bradford.

There was a big demonstration out of all proportion to the size of this village, when the newly-married couple arrived by train from London. A great crowd of men, women and children crowded all the space about the tiny railway station. A group of girl guides in uniform, an organization similar to the Girl Scouts in America, formed a guard of honr for the bride.

Both the bride and groom were radiantly happy and smiled as they acknowledged the cheers and shouts of welcome.

The honeymooners will be completely isolated from the outside world. No visitors will be received at Weston Park nor will the couple be accompanied by any state attendants. The only persons upon the estate in addition to the bride and groom are the servants.

Both the viscount and his bride are very fond of outdoor sports and this taste in common enhances their natural hapiness. They will spend their time in walks, horseback riding, golf and perhaps an occasional game of tennis. The weather is excellent.

Mary lost no time in taking up her household duties and she has already made it apparent that she is of the same type of "home woman" as her mother, the queen. The bride is directing the staff of Lascelles servants who were brought from the London residence of the viscount to care for Weston Park.

Garbed in informal morning dress, the bride explored the estate. She expressed admiration over the collection of antiques and later visited the stables where she looked over the horses. She is fond of all animals, horses especially.

Many villagers gathered outside the gates hoping for a glimpse of the bride and groom.

Advices from Rome state that Italy is preparing a great demonstration of friendship and welcome when the honeymooners arrive in that country. They will live in the Villa Medici in Florence. The bride has traveled very little and is looking forward to the Italian trip with lively interest.

RUSSIA INSISTS ON EQUALITY AT GENOA.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 1—Russia will not participate in the Genoa economic conference at Genoa except on equal terms with the other powers, according to a message received by the bolshevist trade mission today from George Tchitcherin, Commisar for foreign affairs in the Moscow soviet.

The Russian government is opposed to any suggestion for "putting Russia on probation."

The Daily Herald, official organ of the British Labor party, prints a despatch from Rome quoting the Russian trade envoy in that city as saying that France is backing General Wrangel in another contemplated military campaign against the bolshevists.

The Russian official in Rome asserted that the new attack was to open about the same time that the Genoa conference began, and that Wrangel had financial support from a group of American backers as well as from France.

N. Y. PRESSMEN RETURN TO WORK

Announce They Will Abide By Manton Award After One-day Strike, And Publishers Consent To Their Return—Morning Papers Crippled.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 1.—New York newspaper publishers today permitted members of Web Pressmen's Union No. 25 to return to work, after the men had been out on a one-day strike.

Union members walked out last night after they had refused to accept the decision of Judge Martin T. Manton of the United States court of appeals in arbitration proceedings on terms and conditions insisted upon by the union. Both publishers and pressmen had agreed to abide by the arbitrator's decision.

Morning papers were printed in abbreviated form by workmen procured elsewhere, while the union members were deciding to walkout. In the early hours of the morning David Simons, president of the union notified publishers that members of his organization had finally decided to abide by Judge Manton's award, and to return to their presses.

Later, it was decided that the men could return, despite their temporary violation of the agreement which their accredited representatives signed.

RUBBER BANDS FOR SEASICKNESS

This Was Brinnier's Suggested Remedy to Two Women but It Wasn't Effective and He "Heard About It."

Ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier returned Tuesday by steamer from the Isle of Pines and was congratulated today by many friends on his safe return, on his lively step and his healthful appearance. Asked by a reporter of The Freeman how he enjoyed his trip he said it was a most pleasant one. He told of a little incident on his trip home in which he had participated that seemed to be enjoyed by a large number of the passengers on the ship who knew of it.

While on a steamer chair on the deck of the steamship after it had sailed from Havana two women with all the appearance of being very seasick came along and stopped and asked him if there was anything that was good for seasickness and he suggested rubber bands. Asked how they were to be used he told them to go to the ship's purser who no doubt could furnish them and that the directions for use came with the bands. They went immediately to the office of the purser and asked for rubber bands for seasickness. The purser "got wise" that someone was perpetrating a joke and said he was sorry to inform them he was just out of rubber bands.

Later some passenger told the women that the one who recommended rubber bands for seasickness was joking and they made their business to return at once to where Mr. Brinnier was resting in his steamer chair and being very much provoked said a few things about not having their seasickness cured.

Mr. Brinnier also stated that on the steamship from the Isle of Pines to Cuba, he met R. B. Cunningham, of Rochester, N. Y., who is a supreme court justice, and the enjoyed the trip together very much all the way to New York. Judge Cunningham is a very interesting gentleman, said Mr. Brinnier, and before his elevation to the Bench was for a number of years corporation counsel of the City of Rochester and represented that city in its litigation over the five-cent-fare in Rochester, also in the litigation with the trolley railroad over an assessment of two feet outside of the rail which case went to the U. S. supreme court and was decided in favor of the City of Rochester and the railroad company had to pay the assessment.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

CHRISTMAS SHOPS

"Dear me" said Santa, "there is certainly a great deal still to be done. There are a number of shops I must visit. How I do love to be so busy, though.

Sitting About.

"I wouldn't like it at all if I weren't so busy, would I, Boy of the North?"

Boy of the North is Santa Claus' dog, and Boy of the North wagged his tail and barked a happy bark which meant:

"You wouldn't be happy unless you were very, very busy, Master, dear. I am positive of that!"

"I must take a trip to the shops this evening," said Santa Claus.

So that very evening Santa Claus was off. He had been visiting the shops almost every evening lately.

He had many toys to take to the shops, and he had a lot to do to see about the decorations.

"I may take some trips to the shops later on, too. I'd like to catch a glimpse of a little girl named Lucy. I heard her recite 'Bo-Peep' last year.

"And there was a fine boy named Marlio who sang a song all by himself, and also led some other boys in singing.

"Ah, I have plenty to do.

"I must see about the big boat which is to be in one of the shops, and which the children can ride in. They can get in the boat, through a little gateway, and up a plank which I will fix just like a real boat. And there will be a bell ringing every time the boat is to make a trip.

"I'll fix a clock so that the clock will tell when each trip will take place.

"The boat will be like a huge see-saw and it will go back and forth as though the make-believe water were very rough. It will be a beautiful boat, and there will be room for lots of children each time.

"A great bell will ring each time the boat starts a trip. Yes, I must attend to all of that.

"And then I've a note on my list to see that a little girl named Grace is given a turkey. I've the very turkey for her.

"It's not to be a Christmas turkey to be eaten, but it is to be a little toy turkey, and its head will shake about every time Grace touches it. The head will be separated a little from the rest of the turkey's body, and it will have a very funny little throat.

"I will write Grace a little note and tell her that the turkey has had his tonsils out and Grace will laugh as she sees the turkey.

"For in the letter I got from Grace she told me she had had her tonsils out.

"I hope I get lots more letters. I do love to get letters. How I enjoy them!"

As Santa talked he worked. He went from shop to shop. In some he fixed up one kind of a special Christmas treat and in another shop he'd fix up something different.

He left many toys behind, too. He left a very fine band wagon with little men dressed in blue uniforms sitting on top of the wagon. Inside there was machinery which made the little men play music.

And all that had to be done was to wind up the band wagon and the wagon would move along and the men would play.

Then he left some dolls dressed as trained nurses and some baby dolls which talked and which walked.

"Up a Plank."

He left some airplanes and he left engines. He also left toy grocery stores and dolls' houses with real stairways in them and fine piazzas outside of them.

He fixed a dining room table most beautifully with lovely china upon it, and dolls sitting about it.

And he left a lovely boy doll dressed up to look like George Washington, the Father of His Country.

"I've done a great deal this past evening," he said to Boy of the North when he got home at daybreak, "but there is lots more to be done."

And Boy of the North wagged his tail and said:

"Bow-wow, what fun Christmas time is!"

Sufficient Punishment.

"You may spell 'smallpox,' Ralph," said the teacher to one of the juvenile class. Ralph made several attempts and failed.

"Well," said the teacher, "what do you think a boy ought to get who fails on a simple word like 'smallpox'?"

"He ought to get vaccinated," answered Ralph.

GOOD THINGS IN SEASON

Where the fresh mackerel can be obtained, the following recipe will add to the family's enjoyment:

Spiced Mackerel.—Split three fresh mackerel down the back and clean them, removing the bones, scraping all the thin black skin from the inside. Cut off the heads and tails and divide each in half crosswise. Arrange the pieces in a shallow baking dish; pour over enough vinegar to reach to the top pieces, but not cover; sprinkle with salt and pepper and a very little cayenne; place a bay leaf on each and eight cloves with four allspice dropped here and there in the vinegar. Bake in a slow oven for two hours. Serve hot with baked potatoes, or the dish may be served cold with lemon quarters.

Chicken Patties.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter; add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when well blended add one cupful of chicken stock; season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, cayenne and pepper to taste; add one cupful of cold diced chicken and cook slowly five minutes. Fill the patty shells and serve at once.

Royal Patty Shells.—Sift two cupfuls of flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, then rub in four tablespoonfuls of shortening and enough ice water to make a dough to roll. Roll out thin, cut in circles and place on the outside the patty tins, lightly brushed with butter. Bake in a hot oven open side down. Remove the shells carefully and turn open side up to bake for five minutes.

Nut Bars.—Cream one-half cupful of shortening; add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, then the yolk of an egg well beaten, the whites of two eggs beaten stiff, and three tablespoonfuls of milk; mix well. Sift three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and three cupfuls of flour. Mix all together; divide into two parts; roll out and cut into bars. Brush with beaten yolk of an egg and one tablespoonful of milk; sprinkle with one-half cupful of chopped almonds and bake in a moderate oven 15 minutes.

A Lost Art With Him.

Warren G. Sayre of Wabash, an attorney and formerly a state representative, sent a letter several weeks ago to the county clerk of Boone county, asking for information concerning a divorce suit. The letter was written on plain paper in longhand and sent in a plain envelope. Finally the following letter was received from the clerk:

"Dear Sir: I have submitted your letter to every officer of this courthouse and we cannot read a word of it. We cannot even read your signature, so I am cutting it and the address off your letter and pasting it on the envelope carrying this letter, hoping that the post office employes are so talented that they can read your way of writing to assure the delivery of the letter."—Indianapolis News.

More Electric Lights.

During 1921 the increase in residential electric lighting customers in the United States was 1,001,700, according to a survey just completed of reports from electric light and power companies throughout the country. This brings the total number of residential lighting customers up to 8,467,600 or more than double the number in 1915, when only 4,006,300 families had electric lights in their homes.

What Next?

Paris beauty doctors are now specializing in the reforming of women's legs. Two specialists in Rue de la Paix are winning fame by reducing the size of women's ankles and increasing the size of the calf. They have not, as yet, found a way to take the curve out of bowlegs and some of the ladies of society there are hoping almost tearfully that something will develop in this direction.

Names Based on Occupations.

Where a man lived and what he did for a living were two very prolific sources from which was derived the name which eventually stuck to that family, even although they might change their trade or live in some other part of the country.

CHIC NEW FROCKS

Simplicity of Line Marks New Dresses for Season.

Gowns Are Simply and Quietly Lengthened — Harmony Watchword— Must Be Becoming to Figure.

Two notable elements apparent in the season's frocks is the decided uniformity in the matter of the design and the popular Bateau neckline. For this simplicity the French are no doubt responsible.

At present the lines are longer, to be sure but they are simply and quietly lengthened, with every attention given to the proportion and the blending of one line with another, until there results that harmony which is always satisfying and which, authoritatively handled, is becoming to whatever figure happens to wear it.

In accord with this, is the unusually simple design of the frock of mauve-colored crepe, trimmed effectively with terra cotta, blue and brown beads.

The frock shown may be made from the same pattern by an inventive seamstress. It is one of the most popular models of the season, and it has nothing but straight lines to entice the wearer. This is made of emerald green silk duvetyn with the sleeves, long side panels and the narrow ruffle made of accordion plaited dove gray crepe de chine.

Another frock which may easily be cut from the same pattern, with the possible exception of the widened skirt, is made of velvet. This has the drawn-in bodice, made possible by a very slight fitting. Then it tops the straight hanging skirt, which is fuller than we are accustomed to see, and which is simply gathered over a hidden yet. The finishing touch is most effective of all, and is achieved with rows of gray tassels and bands of gray wool trimming, simulating caracul fur. The sleeves are tightly fitted and lend a decidedly new air. Worn with either of the frocks mentioned is the plaid woolly scarf with tam to match which is appealing to all types.

NEW HATS HAVE LACE VEILS

Decoration Is Draped About Brims, Dropping Over the Face to Tip of the Nose.

Many of the new hats have short lace veils draped about their brims, dropping over the face to the tip of the nose. These lace "half veils" have sprung into popularity suddenly, being worn by practically every smart woman at the French races.

Birds wings have come into prominence as trimming particularly on small hats, which are in many cases covered with masses of them. In fact, in Paris at the Theater Michel, where one of the smartest revues of the season was presented, one of the society leaders wore an original and much-talked of headdress made of upturned wings of kingfisher feathers, three or four placed one above the other on each side of her face.

For a Stout Figure.

For the woman who has grown stout to disguise the figure is one of the great arts at present, and in this the cape is a welcome aid to the older woman. Made in every sort of fabric, from the plainest to the loveliest, the cape has varieties beyond enumeration. One model shown is of a straight band of kasha cloth held at the neck by a matching double scarf weighted with two tassels; it might equally well be made of heavy wool of silk, or of the lightest or the heaviest fabrics. In tulle, matching the evening gown, these capes give an added distinction to the costume, cleverly blurring the outline of the figure.

If Knitting Sags.

Knitted wool sweater coats sometimes sag at the shoulder. To prevent this sew a bit of ribbon the length of the shoulder from neck to top of armhole, just fastening it securely at each end.

History of Opium in China.

Opium for use as a medicine was introduced into China in the Thirteenth century by Arabs. The introduction of opium smoking was not until the Seventeenth century and came from India. The first edict prohibiting this was by the Emperor Yung Cheng in 1729.

MEAT TOQUE OF BABY LAMB

Striking indeed is this hat, designed by a Paris milliner. It is a toque of baby lamb on which is mounted a tremendous bow of black velvet. The huge horseshoe ornament adds snap.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Suede suits will be shown for spring.

Kiddies will welcome filled cookies in their school lunches.

Crystal embroidery is a favorite decoration in gowns of crepe.

Skirts for debutantes are made seven or eight inches from the ground.

Crepe meteor and wool albatross is a combination that makes an interesting breakfast coat.

The coat dress of heavy fabric is particularly smart and practical for mid-winter wear.

Felt hats are being shown in large shapes. Flowers are the trimmings usually chosen, but a few are feather-trimmed.

Match marks on a polished or varnished surface may be removed by first rubbing them with a cut lemon and then with a cloth dipped in water.

The fancy for strapped shoes covers the whole range of footgear, from the sturdiest of sport models to the lightest and daintiest of slippers for evening or boudoir wear.

Bright reds and greens, yellows and blues are noted in the sport suits for Southern resort wear, the coat or jacket being of the plain vivid shade, with skirt of white and colored stripes or all white stitched in a shade to match the coat.

METAL CLOTH EVENING FROCK

Fabric Is Extensively Used for Formal Gowns—Majority of Dresses on Straight Lines.

Except in dance frocks for young and slight figures the majority of the season's evening frocks are developed on straight lines with novel and interesting color and fabric combinations.

Metal cloth is extensively used. One particularly fetching evening gown recently seen was made of chiffon in a rich violet shade, with no trimming whatever except a wide girdle of silver cloth caught at one side with a huge rosette of the same.

A gown that combined chiffon and silver cloth featured the former in a dull blue. The silver cloth was used to band the chiffon side panels of the frock over which were draped extra panels of chiffon long enough to form slight trains. Woven silver braid formed the girdle. A black velvet evening gown was made over a silver cloth slip, a wide silver braid in woven design serving as shoulder straps.

BLOOMER FROCKS FOR GIRLS

Popular and Practical Mode of the Season for Little Misses—High Shades Smart.

One of the most popular and practical styles of the season for little girls of four to seven years is the wool jersey bloomer frock and the mother who has not experimented with this fabric in its various color combinations cannot realize how smart it is possible to make these inexpensive little garments.

High shades are particularly smart in the wool jersey dresses for children, colors like bright green, rose and a very deep lavender being popular. Such shades as wistaria and a pale yellow are combined with [illegible]. The fancy for bright shades does not mean that the more somber and practical colors are taboo. Henna and gray brown and tan, navy and green are combined.

Better Gray Than Dyed.

Grayness of the hair is more often hereditary than not. Sometimes worry, anxiety, a diseased condition of the scalp will help along the gray hairs. Aside from removing these latter causes, there is not much one can do for it. If you once start dyeing it, you are in for a lifetime of care on it. And then dyed hair, unless extremely cleverly done and dyed as near the original color as possible, is apt to be quite ugly.

Velvet Hats.

Blue velvet heels on silver brocade slippers are charming, as well as new. Whatever the word of fashion sponsoring the wearing of black satin slippers with evening frocks this winter, there are many delightful slippers of brocade and satin in colors.

Get the Right Viewpoint.

A man is like a bit of Labrador spar, which has no luster as you turn it in your hand until you come to a particular angle, then it shows deep and beautiful colors.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Lucky? Well, he should be, for horseshoes mean a great deal to him in his life. From a field of twenty-two of America's best "barnyard golfers," C. C. Davis, shown in action here, emerged victorious and was crowned champion horseshoe pitcher of the world. The tournament was held at St. Petersburg, Fla. Davis defeated R. P. Spencer of Picher, Okla., in the finals by a score of 50 to 29.

Her First Love Affair.

I experienced my first love affair when I was fifteen. I was going to school at the time, and there was a boy who took quite a liking to me. He called on me one Sunday afternoon. My father was at home at the time, and asked him if he saw the gate. He never came again.—Exchange.

Roxy Swoyer

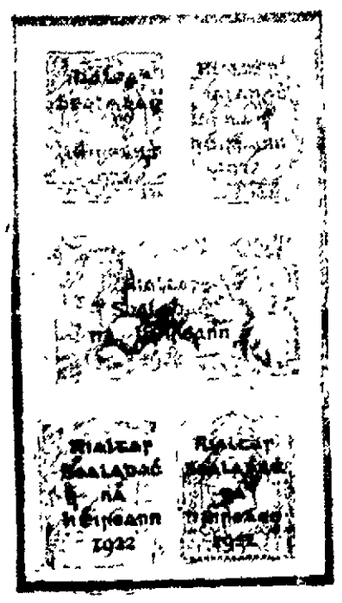
For forty-five years Roxy Swoyer of Philadelphia has sold salted peanuts and candies and other "goodies" to passengers on the Reading Railway. He holds the distinction of being the oldest train "butch" in America. Swoyer began life as a child of the circus and for thirty years lived under the "big white top." He served for a time as a balloonist, but this career was shortened by rheumatic attacks. In 1877 he started as a train "butch," running between Harrisburg and Luray, Va. Later he was transferred to the main line of the Reading and has been there since. Swoyer is the father of four children, all of whom are traveling with circuses.

Arkwright's Spinning Jack.

The Science museum, South Kensington, London, has acquired the only known specimen of the original Arkwright spinning jack, which has been in the Swain family for 150 years. It has 48 spindles, and is worked by hand with a five-foot wooden flywheel. Arkwright, after attempting perpetual motion, completed in 1768 a machine for spinning cotton thread.

Degrees of Affection.

Alma, who had gone to visit some relatives, developed a severe case of homesickness and, when asked if she didn't like her cousins, she replied: "Yes, I like them, but not as well as home-grown folks."



Folks in the "Land of the Shamrock" now are having their country's own improvised postage stamps. With the inauguration of the Irish Free State under terms of the Anglo-Irish treaty the government of Ireland has begun the issuance of Irish stamps, as shown in this picture.

The Irish showed what they thought of King George by stamping his visage, in Gaelic words, "Provisional Government of Ireland." It saved printing new stamps, which is to be done as soon as those with King George's printed-over photo run out.

Theology and Song.

Next to theology, I give to song the highest place and honor; and we see how David and all the saints have wrought their godly thoughts into verse, rhyme, and song.—Luther.

"Jackie" and "Mistress" Mackey

"Jackie," Atlanta's hero dog, is popular today because he refused to desert the Georgia home of his master, W. E. Mackey, when flames threatened the structure. "Jackie" had been left to guard the place and he stuck to his post until firemen arrived and extinguished the flames. But "Jackie" was severely burned. In this picture he is shown in the arms of "little Mistress Mackey" after being given the best of medical attention.

President Washington's Deafness.

"Nor did his hearing remain entirely good. Maclay noted, at one of the Pres. cat's dinners in 1789 that 'he seemed in more good humor than I ever saw him, though he was so deaf that I believe he heard little of the conversation,' and three years later the President is reported as saying to Jefferson that he was sensible, too, of a decay in his hearing."—From "The True George Washington," by Paul Leicester Ford.

Cactus Fences.

Have you ever seen the cactus fences in Mexico? The cactus there grows to a great height. One of them, the organ cactus has a single straight stem, made up of parts, six-sided, several feet long, joined so as to make a trunk. The joints can hardly be seen at all. Some of the larger stems are six inches in diameter. The Mexicans plant these cactus plants side by side so as to form long and strong living fences.

MARRIED BOYS AND GIRLS.

After reading many old-fashioned romances in which the heroines were from 17 to 19 years of age, a youth of the last decades of the nineteenth century discovered with both astonishment and displeasure that a winsome girl of a Howells novel was an "old one" of the advanced age of 28, and it was not until the lapse of some years that he was able to understand that a woman could be young and charming and marriageable at such an age. The incident is recalled by the question as to whether the pendulum is now swinging back toward the early marriages of fifty and a hundred years ago—a question suggested by Census Bureau statistics showing that 1,600 American boys and 12,834 American girls of 15 years are now married. It is further stated that although in 1910 the number of married girls sixteen years of age was 3.7 per cent of the total female population of that age, it had risen to 4.5 per cent in 1920.

The fact that more than 14,000 American girls and boys are married out of 3,907,710 of the ages of 14 and 15 can hardly be regarded as cause for concern because the percentage is so fractional, but this, taken in connection with the rise in the percentage of such unions among girls of that age from 3.7 to 4.5 in ten years, seems to show at least a slight tendency toward a return to early marriages, especially among women. During many years, for economic reasons, the general tendency among men has been toward later marriages, while, for other reasons, there has been a general but less marked tendency toward later marriages among women also.

LACKING IN "TACT."

In an editorial referring to the removal from office of the chief prohibition enforcement officer of Massachusetts, following his raid of a "wet" banquet in Boston in honor of Governor Cox, the Springfield Republican says: "'Dry' Wilson is bounced for 'incompatibility of temperament.' That is the long and the short of the reason publicly given in Washington. 'There never was a question of Mr. Wilson's honesty, energy and interest,' Washington admits. And that is some admission. His temperament must have been awful. If the trouble with 'Dry' Wilson is his temperament, pray give us more enforcement officers with that kind of 'temperament.' It is temperament that enforces or fails to enforce the law."

Outside of the immediate scene of the disturbance most people will be inclined to join this Massachusetts editor in sympathy for "Dry" Wilson. Apparently he acted on the principle that the law is no respecter of persons, and that if the "wet" banquets of common folks are to be raided so also should be the "wet" banquets of the big politicians. It is no fault of his if he discovered to his sorrow that that principle has limitations. The tact which "Dry" Wilson lacked seems not to be wanting in some other quarters, for the Springfield Republican says further: "The extreme caution exemplified in the comment of the Massachusetts anti-saloon league upon the extraordinary imbroglio of prohibition enforcement in this state is perhaps due to a regard for the exigencies of the political situation.

It might well have been added that the whole affair, with its clear proof of strong opposition in high quarters to uniform enforcement—the only just policy—will tend to increase the difficulties of general enforcement in Massachusetts.

The appointment of Alexander MacDonald as conservation commissioner places a man at the head of this important department who is thoroughly qualified to fill the duties satisfactorily. Being a north county man, he knows something about the woodland and he has also been a student of water problems.

The fact that the legislature will adjourn within the next three weeks proves that the Republican party is an efficient political organization and that it does not believe anything is accomplished by delays. There was a certain amount of work to be done when the legislature convened and the leaders decided that the thing to do was to get busy and do it. This was Governor Miller's idea as well, and the result is the state will be saved a lot of money, as a long drawn-out session of the legislature means expense to the people.

Governor Miller recently stated that one of the most difficult problems was to find men capable of filling important places in the state service. There may be those who think that it is easy to pick up men to fill any post, but the man who has had any experience will agree with the governor that they are not like the leaves on the tree. Those who want the places in many instances are not fitted for them, and those who are fitted cannot afford to take them, for, as a rule, they are better off in private life, financially at least, as the state does not pay high salaries as compared with those paid by big concerns.

Burroughs Club Nature Notes

By HOUGHTON MIFFLIN CO.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Dept. of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Please identify an egg found lying with broken ones on a rock in a creek bed in Yreka, California. Size of meadowlark's egg, sky-blue, and had a rough surface, like sandpaper.

2. My husband shot a woodchuck which was climbing a tree. People doubt his story, saying woodchucks do not climb. Do they generally do so?

3. Do spiders bite, and are they poisonous?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. How long does it take ostrich feathers to grow to marketable length?

Six months is required, and the bird must be kept fed up with nourishing and stimulating food all during the time the feathers are being matured. Alfalfa, rape, mangel and all sorts of grains are fed.

2. Can a sterile fig tree be fertilized?

The fruit of edible varieties of fig must be cross-fertilized by the visit of the fig-wasp which lives in the fruit of the wild fig, if the cultivated variety is to have viable seeds (seeds that will reproduce). This process is called caprification and is practiced in orchards. The fig-wasp breeds in the caprifig, or wild fig, hence the name of the artificial process. In this sense, the sterile fig can be fertilized.

3. What is the difference between a turtle and a terrapin?

"Turtle," is loosely used for almost any Chelonian, or creature with its bony case on the outside of the body. A "terrapin" usually means an edible, fresh-water species, with a hard shell. If a "turtle" lives wholly on land it is usually called a "tortise." But tortoise shell, so-called, does not come from a tortoise, but from the hawk's bill sea turtle.

To Help Put on Good Firm Flesh and Round Out Your Face and Figure

Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets Often Produce Most Surprising Results. Get a FREE $1.00 Package Today as Explained Below — Try Them for Ten Days and Watch the Results

Science has at last shown how we sometimes of us weak, thin and emaciated with a superabundance of food (lacking in vitamines) while with a much smaller amount of food, rich in vitamines, we quickly take on good firm flesh, increase in weight, and make a remarkable gain in strength, energy and endurance, provided your blood contains sufficient quantity of oxygenated organic iron to enable your body to assimilate your food properly.

Without organic iron both food and vitamines are absolutely useless as your body can not engage lifeless inert food matter into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood.

For centuries scientists tried in vain to make organic iron. At last the problem was solved so that you may now obtain pure organic iron like the iron in your blood from any druggist under the name of "Nuxated Iron."

It has been arranged to give every purchaser of Nuxated Iron, who wishes something to help put on flesh or increase weight, a large regular $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets absolutely free. Be sure to take only Nuxated Brand Yeast Vitamine Tablets with Nuxated Iron. Do not be misled by imitations which often contain drugs.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Jambo

Teddy And Betty.

It was Betty's first dance Teddy took her
With her pretty head all in a whirl
She was dressed in a sweet, modest costume,
A simple and shy little girl

All the fellows who went to the ball
Were casting sheep's eyes 'round the hall,
And seeking to find, in all of that bunch,
The girl who could really dance with a punch.

They never saw Betty at all
She registered blank at the ball
They chose the gay flappers in decollete gowns
And looked upon Betty with sneers and with frowns

So Teddy and Betty left early you bet,
She feeling a failure he filled with regret,
And Teddy dropped Betty as most fellows do
And picked out a flapper—and fell for her, too

So you see in this fable the moral is plain,
And the masculine sex is quite surely to blame.
For the rouge on the cheeks and the backbone that shows
The general morals and exposure of hose.

It always makes a girl feel better when her mother becomes reconciled to her bobbed hair.

Getting Money.

There's no such word as fail
And that's good business stuff
But I have heard there is a word
That wise men call "enough."

It is funny how the people who are so crazy to get all the gold they can will invariably pass by the golden rule.

Making It Fair.

"We are getting up a tug-of-war contest between married men and single men, six to a side.

"Make it ten single men to six married men.

'Huh!'

"Married men are used to tug-of-war."

Back teeth and small boys are hard to fill.

Poison liquor an lightning never strike twice in the same place. They don't have to.

Some statistical bird has figured out that prices while lower are 13.2 per cent higher than they were before the war, but he neglects to say what we are going to do about it.

Bald Eagles on River

Hovering over the clear lane of water made by the Newburgh and Beacon ferry eight bald eagles have been noticed lately says the Newburgh News. The eagles have been attracted to that section in search of fish, the spot cleared by the ferry being the only unfrozen place far up and down the river.

WHERE YOU SEE THE NEW THINGS FIRST

Featuring a New Middy Blouse Which Schoolgirls Will Vote "The Best Ever"

The New "Paul Jones Two-In-One Middy"

For street and classroom wear, the schoolgirl likes the neat, trim, short middy with cuff bottom. But when she goes to the gymnasium, she must have a full length, loose middy. How to combine these two requirements is a problem which the girls themselves have been able to solve only in a half satisfactory way, by rolling up and pinning the loose middy. It was untidy, and it left a bunch over each hip—but it was the only solution of the difficulty until the "Paul Jones" makers devised the new "TWO-IN-ONE" MIDDY.

This new middy is to all appearances a regulation [illegible] But it has tabs sewed into the inner side seams which are snapped back when the middy is worn. When the wearer wishes to have a cuffed middy she unsnaps the tabs and buttons the tails over the cuff. The result is a waist length middy, which fits smoothly over the full bloomer.

SAME IN THE PRICE

Visit the Demonstration of the "Two-in-One" Middy Friday and Saturday

A living model and a demonstrator will show you clearly the advantage of this clever new device.

Schoolgirls and their mothers are particularly invited.

Why "French" High Heels

It is said that Louis XVI appeared in court wearing high heels to hide his fat ankles. He was not all thin and people thought his condition [illegible] self-deadly impressive. The term French heel was applied to high heels and finally to a certain type of high heel.

Canadian Scenic Parks

The scenic parks of Canada are the Rocky mountains Jasper and Waterton lakes in Alberta, Yoho, Glacier, Mount Revelstoke and Kootenay in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Point Pelee in Ontario. The game parks are Buffalo, Elk, Island parks and Foremost Antelope [illegible] in Alberta.

MARCH CAME IN COLD AND FAIR

With thermometers registering from 10 to 16 degrees above zero at 7 o'clock this morning March came in fair and cold, and the weather man is promising snow and continued snappy weather.

The thermometers began to drop Tuesday afternoon and as the evening advanced the weather grew gradually colder. This morning as a result of the cold snap the walks and roads were again ice bound.

The cold snap, however, is not interfering with the ferry Transport which is making regular trips. The only boat that has run all winter has been the famous old Skillypot plying the waters of the Rondout creek between this port and Sleightsburgh.

WHAT ABOUT THOSE HOSPITAL WASH CLOTHS?

Some little time ago the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross put an appeal in the local papers for wash cloths for the hospitals where our ex-service men now are, and it was asked that the articles be ready as soon as possible. Now if the demand had been for something big that would call for a real, honest-to-goodness drive, Kingston and the rest of Ulster county would have promptly gone over the top. Wash cloths are just too easy. Yet thousands are needed and needed now to supply the above-mentioned hospitals.

The appeal was for cloths made from old table cloths, old huck toweling or bath towels and it was asked that when finished they measure 12 by 12 inches. It was also counted permissible to knit them. They may be in the making but if so very little is being heard from them.

Wouldn't it be a mighty good beginning-Lent stunt to get busy and make a half dozen or so this week and send them into the Red Cross office, 44 Main street. If you haven't the time to make the cloths, those of the specified size may be purchased and contributed, or if any one so wishes they may send money for the purchase of the same to Mrs. C. E. Hasbrouck, Stuyvesant street, and Mrs. Hasbrouck will do the purchasing. Anyhow, let's get our quota of 500 wash cloths ready to be sent to the Atlantic Division of the Red Cross this week.

WOOD PRAISES TROOPERS AT POLICE GRADUATION.

A class of ninety-two was graduated from the police school Tuesday night at exercises at the Troy Central Young Men's Christian Association. The diplomas were presented by Lieutenant Governor Jeremiah Wood, who paid a high compliment to the state police and its head, Major George F. Chandler. Attorney General Charles L. Newton the principal speaker, told the graduates to demand a respect for the law from all citizens.

Major Lynn Adams of the Pennsylvania state police, presented the awards to the three graduates with the highest honors. They were: Troopers W. C. Yokel, 95.5 per cent; H. E. Keator, 95.5; and E. C. Smith, 95.2.

Seated on the speakers' platform were Mayor Walter P. Crane of Kingston, Chief of Police J. Allan Wood and Police Commissioner William C. Shafer of Kingston; Captain Charles P. Dutton of the state police and Colonel Ransom H. Gillett, commander of the 105th infantry. Following the exercises a dinner was given for the class at the Trojan hotel.

TAX THE CATS, TOO.

Must Pay for Dogs, Why Not Those "Nuisances?"

Having read with appreciation the fine article on birds by Phebe Flicker, we would like to submit a few questions regarding cats.

With the coming of spring and the return of the birds, is it desirable to give them welcome with an army of cats?

Are cats responsible for the absence of some of our most desirable songsters?

Why are cats allowed to roam at will, a nuisance to long suffering neighbors, while other animals of better habits must be confined?

Does Kingston need so many cats?

Dogs are taxed—why not cats?

Who else favors a tax on cats?

Newest medium for picking up gossip is this radiophone—made in the manner of a garter. The dinky little outfit was invented by Walter E. Miller, of a Seattle newspaper, and here is being worn by Miss Julia Elmendorf. With the radiophone on her knee, she is able to sit at her desk and pick up radio news for the newspaper.

This duplicate of the wedding gown worn by Princess Mary at her marriage in London Tuesday to Viscount Lascelles was designed by Reville, of London, dressmaker to Her Majesty the Queen. The gorgeous gown, worn here by Miss Marion Davies, famed film and stage star, was imported by Franklin, Simon & Company of New York.

The lavishness of the wedding gown and trousseau worn by Princess Mary was visually embellished by the gorgeous dress of ceremonial attendants, bridesmaids and ushers all being clad in the finest of raiment.

The wedding ceremony took place in historic Westminster Abbey amid all the pomp and glory of old world royalty.

Grades for British Apples.

The British apple growers have recently been devoting considerable attention to the establishment of grades for their product and much progress has been made in this development. The chief reason for the movement is the desire to place on the large British markets an apple grown in England which will compare favorably in price with the best American and Australasian product. It has often been stated in England that the market advantage of the American apple is entirely due to the fact that it is correctly graded and packed.

There is no large supply of British apples which could be closely graded for market. The British growers generally have not paid much attention to market requirements in the selection of their trees nor to the care and cultivation of orchards.

Mysteries of the Infinite.

What do the stars above us mean? What's around them? What is their purpose in creation? Our "star," which we call the sun, we fondly believe is for the purpose of giving our little grain we call the earth, warmth and light, so that we may live and move and have our being. As we strut about and enjoy our petty achievements we do not often contemplate the starry vault above us. Perhaps it is just as well so, for when we search out the knowledge of the heavens how we shrink! How we shrink!—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Roof of Washington's Home.

The wood shingle roof on George Washington's home at Mount Vernon was repaired by him in 1785 and was not again repaired until 1861—a life of 76 years, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. There have been many instances found where shingle roofs have lasted satisfactorily for 80 years and even 100 years. It is not at all unreasonable to attribute such a lifetime to cedar when we consider that the old sarcophagi in which mummies of the Egyptian kings were buried 5,000 years ago are still found in fairly sound condition.

Blue Grass Country

DOWN in Ole Kentucky lie the blue grass pastures. And in the pastures anyone with half an eye can picture the sleek, well-fed thoroughbred horse grazing there.

This thoroughbred is almost a national figure. We boast of him.

Yet, were the region arid, the breeding of the horse would not save his sleekness or strength.

So it is in the pastures of investment. The fare of the electric light and power industry must be wholesome, else it cannot have a healthy growth and work for you satisfactorily. "No starved horse ever pulled a heavy load."

The whole theory of these electric light and power companies has been to give efficient service to the public.

Under state regulation, when charges to the public are under consideration, recognition is given to actual operating cost, with a fair return to investors.

In other words, capital is paid only fixed wages in this industry.

Since the industry must buy money as well as material if the growing needs of the country are to be met, it is essential that the wages of capital should be fairly fixed. Investors cannot be drawn to a pasture if it becomes arid.

Fourteen hundred thousand homes in the United States are unwired and will be furnished with electric service, when needed, by new capital induced to work for "fair wages."

More than 1,500,000 homes, 500,000 factories, 5,000 churches, 60,000 apartment buildings, 15,000 theatres and 5,000 public schools must be built to take care of increased population. Vast new equipment must be added, and a tremendous investment made by the electric light and power companies, to keep pace with the nation's progress.

This can be done only through general understanding of the problems of the electrical industry.

Money Back If "Gets-It" Fails

is as easy to peel off a corn as to skin a banana. Touch it with "Gets-It" and the trick is done. For hard corns, soft corns, any corn—or callus. All pain stops instantly and the corn proceeds to loosen and soon can be lifted right off.

FARM WOMEN ARE IN REVOLT

Declares Marsh—Council Plans To Secure National Balance Of Power And Crush Republican Party.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 1.—Farm women of the west, middle west and northwest are in political revolt, Benjamin C. Marsh, managing director of the Farmers' National Council, declared here today.

According to Marsh, they are organizing for activities in the next congressional campaign to support the program of the United Farmers' National Bloc, the new farmers' organization recently launched in Chicago to stand behind the agricultural bloc in congress and to secure "balance of power" in national elections.

They will send speakers to appeal to the new woman voter in the east to help them by supporting legislation proposed for relief of the farmers, Marsh stated.

"The farm mothers and farm children are the worst sufferers from conditions which are driving farmers throughout the country to ruin," Marsh said today.

"The women are thoroughly aroused and will be heard from with their ballots in the next election.

"The United Farmers' National Bloc is going to begin to organize in a non-partisan way to carry out its program in the coming congressional election to hold the balance of power in the strategic states and congressional districts in the northwest, middlewest and far west."

Marsh declared the Republican party "doomed."

"The coal baron section of investment bankers, who control our domestic and foreign policies, have succeeded in defeating legislation to secure even publicity on the coal industry. In this they have been ably aided and abetted by the courts," said Marsh.

CLEARWATER TO REPRESENT STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

At American Bar Association Annual Meeting.

The Hon. William D. Guthrie, president of the New York State Bar Association, has appointed Judge Clearwater a delegate to represent the association at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association to be held in San Francisco on the 9th, 10th and 11th of August. Mr. Guthrie says that there is every indication that the San Francisco meeting will be the most important in the forty years' history of the American Bar Association, and that the officers of the New York Association greatly desire the judge to represent it at San Francisco.

Judge Clearwater's attitude in the constitutional convention of 1915, in the judiciary article constitutional convention of 1921, his addresses at gatherings of American lawyers during the last ten years, in which he severely has criticised the growth of bureaucratic government in the United States has won the endorsement and approval of the leaders of the American bar. The judge was among the first of American lawyers to denounce the subversion of constitutional government by bureaus created by legislative enactment, a method which repeatedly he has said is subversive of representative institutions, and inevitably leads to the creation of those autocratic and oligarchic methods which the verdict of history demonstrates inevitably destroys republican institutions and representative governments. Constantly he has urged the American bar to oppose the growth of these bureaus which he says largely are composed of ill equipped men who unhesitatingly construe the law, enforcing their construction with governmental authority regardless of the correctness and legality of their conclusions. Repeated determinations by these bureaus, says Judge Clearwater, make precedents; the accumulation of precedents eventually makes the law, with the inevitable result that the American people will find themselves immeshed in a spider's web of constructive law from which it will be difficult, if not impossible, to escape without revolution.

LENTEN SERVICES AT SPRING STREET CHURCH

With Ash Wednesday Lent begins which lasts forty days before Easter. This forty day period modeled after the duration of Christ's fast in the wilderness, has been set apart by the early church for the contemplation of Christ's suffering and death, and of those vital truths on which the Christian religion is founded. The word "Lent" was used in the old Anglo-Saxon language and meant to lengthen, because in spring the days lengthen—grow longer. The word "Lent" was transferred to the church of God and became the name for the Passion season. Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent received its name from the custom of blessing the ashes and placing them on the foreheads of the penitent faithful. Lent is the great penitential season of the church, its outward expression self discipline—self denial—and its fruit reconciliation with God. It is a solemn season and full of blessings if observed and used as it ought to be. But many take no notice of this holy season. They indulge in their worldly pleasures and amusements more than ever and practice no self denial. Lent season is a time of worship and devotion. During this time special services are held and the large attendance of these solemn services are a proof that they supply a deep felt want.

At the Spring Street Lutheran Church on Wednesday evenings beginning with this evening Lenten services in German will be held at 7:30. The last weekly service on Wednesday in Holy Week will be held in English and will be a preparatory service for Holy Communion on Good Friday and Easter. The topics of a course of sermons to be delivered at the weekly Lenten services will be: "Christ The Crucified; "A Woeful Complaint;" He Laid Down His Life For Us;" The Crown of Thorns;" "The Cross;" "Christ Suffered, Was Crucified, Dead and Buried." Lenten services in English will be held as follows: Sunday evening, March 5, subject, "The Love of God;" Sunday morning, March 12, subject, "The Love of Christ," Sunday evening, March 19, subject, "Gethsemane;" Sunday morning, March 26, subject, "Words From the Cross." On Sunday evening, April 2, examination of the catechetical class, English. On Palm Sunday confirmation services in English will be held. At the morning service 13 children and at the evening service 10 adults will be confirmed. The members and friends of the church are cordially invited to attend these services. A. S.

Keep Coal Dry.

If coal is kept in a dry, airy place it will burn much better than if placed in a close, poorly ventilated cellar. Coal that is confined from the air soon gets rid of its gas and the absence of this renders it more wasteful when burned.

Law-Abiding Bootlegger.

The philosophy of the modern bootlegger is illustrated in a story now going the rounds in Washington—a story which has carried an appeal to some of the highest officials of the government.

It seems that a "regular customer" called up his own particular bootlegger a night or two ago and asked him what he had in stock.

"Well," replied the B. L., "I have some Scotch, some rye, some bourbon, a little gin and a little vermouth."

"Have you any absinthe?" inquired the customer.

"E—h, no, sah," came back in an astonished voice, "it's against the law to sell absinthe."

Story of a Famous Old Timer.

An esteemed correspondent recalls two little stories of that eminent Ohioan, Gov. David Tod, who, among his other official distinctions, numbered that of minister to Brazil, appointed by President Polk and holding the office five years.

When it was noised about among the future governor's old friends and acquaintances that he had been made minister to Brazil, one of them drawled: "Wal, all I got to say is that Dave'll make a shenl of a minister!"

When Minister Tod officially interviewed Don Pedro II in Rio Janeiro, he said to his interpreter: "Tell the emperor that if he will hurry up the carrying out of that request I made him I'll send him a car load of the best Brier Hill coal my people can mine."

As coal wasn't used in Rio, the interpreter collapsed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Thimble Party.

Tuesday evening the ladies and men of the Wurts Street Baptist Church held a thimble party at the home of their pastor, the Rev. Raymond P. Ingersoll and family in the parsonage of the church. During the evening there was a splendid program rendered. The first number was a piano solo by Miss Edna Goodsell which was very prettily rendered; second, a recitation by Mrs. Leon Jenson, spoken in a very clever manner and which brought forth great applause; third, a solo by Miss Ethel Tongue, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Ingersoll; fourth, Mrs. Harry Madden very cleverly recited a poem in a manner which was greatly appreciated by all. The fifth number was a series of poems by Floyd W. Powell, who by his able and witty remarks, made a most profound impression. In order that the evening's entertainment would not get monotonous, a hat trimming contest was held by the men. J. C. Legg won the honor for the best trimmed hat and the lady who wore it was declared to be the winner of the contest, Mrs. William C. Coutant. She won a very handsome prize. The pastor, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Ingersoll, sang some oldtime songs which were greatly enjoyed by all. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening's program. When leaving for their homes they all declared Mr. and Mrs. Ingersoll and family, royal good entertainers.

Labor Leaders, Including Gompers, Flock to Albany to Defeat Industrial Court Scheme—Governor Believed Not to Favor It.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 1.—Today is "Labor Day" at the capitol.

Headed by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, labor representatives from all parts of the state are expected to make a concerted attack on the Duell-Miller industrial relations court bill, at the hearing this afternoon before the joint labor and industries committees. The measure is aimed to prevent strikes and lockouts.

Because of the statement made by Gov. Miller, in which he declared that he thought the bill went too far in the direction of establishing state control over labor to prove acceptable to the people of the state, the labor people believed their fight against the measure is won. Even if the bill should be favorably reported by the committee, labor advocates say they feel sure it will not be passed by the legislature.

Long before the hour set for the hearing on the labor measures, the labor representatives arrived at the capitol in large numbers. It was said that Mr. Gompers has been making a careful study of the industrial relations court in Kansas, and that he is prepared to tell the legislators that it has not been a success.

Tomorrow afternoon there will be a hearing on the Wiswall-Mastick bill which would repeal the railroad full crew law, and labor is expected to make a determined effort to have this bill killed in committee. Mr. Gompers is expected to remain over to fight this measure.

Were His Antagonist Out.

Roosters have different tactics when fighting and often display considerable brainwork. Recently, in a Cuban rooster fight, where a little rooster was pitted against a big fellow, the little one looked at his antagonist and started to run around and around, with the big rooster after him. Then, when the big bird was out of breath, the little one turned on him and whipped him in short order.

Right Idea of "Drudgery."

The secret of success still lies in the same old word, "drudgery." For drudgery is the doing of one thing, one thing, one thing, long after it ceases to be amusing; and it is this "one thing" I do that gathers me together from my chaos, that concentrates me from possibilities to powers.—W. C. Gannett.

MANY ENGINEERS SEEK NEW FIELDS

Jobless Trained Men Forced to Ask Work in Other Lines.

EVEN STORE JOBS ARE SOUGHT

Some Employed as Watchmen Till Times Mend—Thousands of Engineers in All Parts of the Country Are Idle—Mining Experts Are the Hardest Hit—Result May Be That Engineering Will Be Extended to New Fields—Mining Relief in Sight.

Forced by the general condition of unemployment to seek new fields, engineers of the metropolitan district of New York have formed a volunteer committee to open up fresh avenues of effort. Department stores, industrial establishments and many branches of trade, commerce and manufacturing are being thoroughly canvassed to uncover Lilliputian jobs into which, under modern methods of organization, it is thought the engineer can be fitted.

Thousands of engineers, mostly graduates of colleges and technical schools, are idle in all parts of the country, it was said by Walter V. Brown, manager of the employment service of the Federated American Engineering societies. The situation is so bad that the service maintained by the societies is being supplemented by volunteer assistance.

Mining Engineers Hit Hard.

The mining engineers are the hardest hit. F. F. Sharpless, secretary of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers said that it was impossible to determine the number of such engineers out of employment, but he would not be surprised if the number reached 5,000. Mr. Sharpless said that relief would be experienced in the mining industries soon with the resumption of operations in the big copper mines. The institute normally has 10,000 members.

The institute's data on unemployment revealed many cases in which men in normal periods earning from $2,500 to $15,000 a year were driven to accept minor jobs, such as watchmen, or were out of work altogether.

The volunteer committee now at work, principally in the New York district, is composed of thirty men. F. M. Bond of Baltimore, a major in the ordnance department during the war, has been appointed chairman. An executive committee consists of W. N. Gately and George Beavers Jr. of New York and C. B. Good of White Plains.

Mr. Gately said that idleness was likely to result in the extension of engineering to new spheres. When the volunteers called on the department stores they were received with skepticism because retailing traditionally has been regarded as foreign to engineering. Now, however, the possibilities of engineering training are beginning to be better understood. Cost methods, simplification of systems and personnel were activities, he said, to which industrial engineers might properly apply their efforts.

Many Seek Jobs.

The employment service conducted by the Federated American Engineering Societies is free. Mr. Brown said that 3,105 men in different parts of the country were on the active list seeking employment. During the early part of January 125 positions were filled, and for these 600 men were waiting.

Mr. Gately said that instead of going over prepared ground a careful study of possibilities was made, and these fields were found to offer new opportunities for the engineer: Industrial, covering manufacturing construction and consulting work; banking, accounting, insurance, department stores, filing and publication. Mr. Brown gave the number of men registered during 1921 at the Federation's Employment Service as 1,905, of these, 1,365 were placed in positions. More men were placed in December than in any other month, and more men were registered in June than in any month, the low mark in this respect being in November.

It was said that nationally the civil engineers ranked next to the mining engineers in numbers of unemployed with the electrical engineers third.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the largest organization of engineers in the country, with a membership of more than 16,000 was believed to be the least affected.

INFANT FINE SPELLER

Long Words Have No Terrors for This Little Lad.

The words Mediterranean, pleailili, Deuteronomy, formaldehyde, acclamation, constitutional, dissipation, authoritatively, and other similar ones, hold no terrors to Fern Waterman, four-and-one-half-year-old phenomenal speller, who lives in the Ozark Hills, near Eldridge, Wis.

Whenever the lad comes to town with his parents he soon becomes the center of interest. He frequently gives exhibitions of his spelling prowess. One of the things the youngster likes to do is to stand on the station platform and when a train stops to take water or wait while baggage is being handled, Fern spells for the passengers.

None of the jawbreakers that so frequently "stump" adults give Fern any trouble. The lad spells all of them with comparative ease.

BROTHERS SEEK SPANISH GOLD

Treasure Worth $4,000,000 Hidden by Missionaries.

LOCATED NEAR MEXICAN LINE

Padres, Forced to Flee From Apache Indian Raiders, Hid Gold in Mine and Then Sealed It—Explorers Have Been Searching for Treasure for Last 18 Years—Excavators Find Mine Barricaded With Heavy Cedar and Mahogany Timbers.

Five Missouri brothers are searching for the mythical pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, albeit they entertain hopes of finding a treasure estimated to be $4,000,000.

The treasure was said to have been hidden in an old mine more than 200 years ago by Spanish missionaries, who were forced to flee for their lives before bands of Apache Indian raiders.

The location of the mine, according to the tale, lies about fifteen miles south of the Mexican border and up in the mountains. The padres buried their treasure, it is said, and then sealed the mine.

Only one of the five brothers is on the actual scene where the excavation is being conducted. He is Frank P. Magee, a mining engineer of El Paso, Tex. He together with his assistant, Antonio Mendoza, has presented such evidence of success that Magee's brothers and several El Paso business men are pushing the exploration zealously. Mendoza has been searching for the buried treasure for the last 18 years.

Find Mine Barricaded.

Frank Magee declared in a recent letter written to his brothers, John, J. A. and Vance Magee, all of Macon, Mo., that as far as the excavation had proceeded they had found the mine barricaded with heavy cedar and mahogany timbers. Tom Magee of Moberly, another brother, is also interested in the search for gold.

"There is authentic history that the ore from this mine was so valuable that it was carried by pack mules and ox trains to Mexico City, a distance of 1,200 miles, for smelting," wrote Magee. "I'm banking more on that than I am on finding the millions stored away by the old padres to keep it from falling into the Indians' hands. So far as our investigations have progressed the stories of the hidden treasure have been borne out, and Senor Mendoza, a capable mining man, is confident that it is here."

Eighteen years ago Melitron Ordaz, a postmaster at Chihuahua City, gave Mendoza the document describing the location where Magee is now conducting his operations, with the understanding that he was to be a partner in the enterprise. It was Ordaz who related the story of the mine being sealed on the approach of hostile tribes of Indians.

People Agitated.

The mine is known as La Mina Peria, and it includes three shafts. The main shaft is through a fissure in the rock. Signs of ancient drills can be seen on all sides. In the shafts are numerous well-preserved ladders made from mahogany and cedar. Presumably the miners of olden times used these ladders to take their ore to the surface.

Magee has written that the people along the border are considerably agitated over their explorations and that several newspapers have sent writers to see how near they are getting to the treasure. He said that they have worked to nearly 600 feet in one of the shafts and that the cedar and mahogany timbering continues all the way.

One theory that is given much credence by several mining engineers has it that the old mine was a rich producer and that a great deal of gold bullion had accumulated and was awaiting shipment to the smelters at Mexico City when news of the raiding Apaches came, and hurried measures were taken to keep the treasure out of the hands of the Indians, who had evidently heard of the contemplated shipment and had made plans to seize it.

SKUNK BROKE UP DANCE

Spiteful Swain Took Novel Method to Secure Redress.

Because his sweetheart, Geraldine McPherson, accepted an invitation to a schoolhouse dance with another, Fred C. Williamson, of Center, Neb., is said to have thrown a live skunk among the dancers and then smoked them out by choking the chimney.

With the entertainment well under way, Williamson, who had threatened he would break up the dance if the girl went with his rival, crept up to the windows under cover of darkness, closed the frame blinds, and barred them from the outside.

After roping the door to a tree, Williamson crept to the one open window, directly behind the piano, threw in a crippled skunk which he had captured the day before, barred the window from the outside, and ascended the roof and placed a board on the chimney with a stone to hold it down.

Eight girls were rapidly overcome before the door was broken open. Williamson disappeared and the police are seeking him. The day after he left Miss McPherson also left for Omaha. It is believed the girl forgave Williamson and eloped with him.

POULTRY CACKLES

KEROSENE EMULSION RECIPE

Effective Disinfectant for Use in Poultry House Is Easy to Make and Also Inexpensive.

The kerosene emulsion which is frequently used to destroy mites may readily be converted into a disinfectant, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The emulsion is made by shaving one-half pound laundry soap into one-half gallon soft water. Boil the mixture until soap is dissolved and then, after removing it to a safe distance from the fire, stir into it, while hot, 2 gallons of kerosene. This makes the stock mixture. When it is to be used as a louse killer, 1 quart of the emulsion is mixed with 10 quarts of water. When it is to be used as a disinfectant, stir well and add 2 pints of crude carbolic acid or crude cresol.

The compound solution of cresol is one of the best disinfectants that can be purchased ready to use. It contains 50 per cent of cresol, and a pint of it in 10 quarts of water makes the right solution to apply to houses or spray over the ground. A 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid (1 pint carbolic acid, 10 quarts water) is about equally efficacious.

ADVANTAGE OF EARLY BIRDS

Success of Poultry Keeping Depends Largely on Well-Matured, Vigorous Pullets.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The early bird—referring to poultry—not only gets the worm but seems to have every other advantage over the one that is hatched late. Upon early hatching largely depends the success of poultry keeping, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Early hatched chicks, they say, produce well-matured, vigorous pullets, which will begin laying in the fall and early winter. It is only from such early laying pullets that the best production and greatest profit can be secured. Early hatched chicks also mean hens which grow broody earlier the next spring, and those in turn allow early hatching to be continued to a greater degree when natural methods of incubation are relied upon.

For several years the department specialists have conducted early hatching campaigns. The movement has been encouraged by state officials and county agents until now such campaigns are conducted early in the spring over practically the entire country. Reports from poultry specialists and other sources indicate that early hatching is being practiced much more generally this spring than ever before, the favorable weather conditions being largely responsible for this fact.

CURE FOR EGG-EATING HENS

Professor Lippincott of Kansas College Recommends Paring Off End of Beak.

In answer to the many inquiries for a remedy for egg-eating hens, appears the following by William A. Lippincott, Kansas State Agriculture college:

"Hens can be cured of eating eggs by paring off the end of the beak until it is very tender. It should not be cut so as to make it bleed. After being cut back until the quick is almost exposed, give the birds some china eggs to pick at. As a usual thing they soon get over their desire to pick at anything hard and, by the time the beaks are grown out, have gotten entirely over the vice."

DUST BATH SHOULD BE HANDY

Good Place Is in Sun Where It Will Keep Warm and Dry—Change Loam Occasionally.

The dust bath should be where the sun will shine on it in order that it may be kept dry and warm as may be. On almost all sunny days, one or more hens will be seen filling their plumage with the soft earth and that will do much toward keeping down lice and assuring the health of the flock. A high-sided box should be used to prevent the fowls from throwing the dirt out when using the bath. The loam should be changed occasionally so that it will not become filthy.

Grandpa Wakes Up Tilfield

By MARVIN ST. JOHNS

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

There were—let me see, there were Cousin Jasper Haynes, Cousin Maria Haynes, Cousin Thomas and Samantha Biggs, Lucy and Paul, and myself, not to mention Grandpa and Grandma Chittenden. They lived in Washington, but the rest of us inhabited Tilfield.

Grandpa Chittenden was a Civil war pensioner, and in the middle part of his incredibly long life he had found oil, I believe. Anyway, he was reputed awfully rich, rich enough to make all his grandsons and great-granddaughters, which means Lucy, wealthy for life. And he was eighty-seven years old, and Grandma eighty-five.

Tilfield was not the place that one would choose to live in. It was a little New England town, very Sabbatarian, amateur fire brigade—you know the style. Some folks might like it, of course, but, frankly, we Haynes and Biggses and the rest of us lived there because we had been born there, and we were too poor to move away.

That is, till grandpa died. Every year each of us would receive a letter from him on the anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, in which he lost a leg. "I'm growing very feeble," he would say, "and so is my dear wife. I hardly hope to survive the coming winter. God bless you, my dear—Paul, Lucy, Samantha, Jasper, Thomas or Maria, as the case might be.

We had reckoned that there ought to be at least ten thousand apiece and some of us were getting on in years and anxious to see the last of Tilfield. Lucy was twenty-seven and Paul two years older. Oh, why did Grandpa Chittenden hang on so?

Then an amazing thing happened. A brief letter came to each of us informing us that grandpa and grandma were going to pay us a visit.

The day arrived and the tribe was gathered at the station to welcome him. But grandpa wasn't on the train.

"I guess he wasn't feeling well enough to come," said Cousin Thomas meaningly.

Just then a smart touring car came to a standstill near us and an old gentleman, who was at the wheel, seated beside an old lady, turned and looked hard. It was grandpa!

"Welcome, grandpa!" we all shouted, eagerly.

"Ha, ha!" chuckled grandpa. "Fooled you young folks, didn't I? We thought we'd motor over instead of taking the train, and enjoy the country air."

"Motored from where?" we asked.

"From Washington," said grandpa, with a chuckle.

Grandpa fell in with our plan to have him one day at each house, and after he had made the round he made it again.

"I tell you young people, I'm falling in love with Tilfield," he said.

Everybody was pretty glum by now, for grandpa looked good for a dozen years or more. And then came the day of the state fair.

By this time, in spite of our disappointment, we couldn't help liking grandpa. He had told us that he was worth a hundred thousand dollars, and was going to divide it up among us equally, or, if we didn't outlive him, among our heirs. But, as I was saying, the state fair came along and Howson in his new airplane, the new sort that turns somersaults in the air, without upsetting.

"Where's grandpa?" I asked one of the assistants who had charge of the airplane fixtures.

"What, the old gent with the wooden leg?" he answered. "Why, he's up in the machine."

"What, up there?" cried Cousin Jasper, pointing to the airplane, which was doing the dip of death about a mile over our heads. "And where's grandma?"

"What, the old lady? Why—she's there, too!"

I heard a scream behind me. Cousin Maria was having hysterics. And then the cry was drowned in the delighted yells of the crowd as the machine, like a great bird, righted itself and came floating gracefully down and lit within twelve feet of where we stood. And out stepped grandpa and grandma.

"Boys," said grandpa, when they set him down, "that was a foolhardy thing to do. I ain't as young as I was—I'm going on for eighty-eight—and I'm a family man with responsibilities. No more airplanes for me. I stick to the good old-fashioned auto now and henceforward."

Now, the strange thing about it is, grandpa was such a good sport that, instead of wishing him dead, from that minute we began to think out plans for prolonging his life. And the things he did to Tilfield! Why, all the reporters in the state were out to see him, and we found out he was a famous manufacturer, and he was planning to carry power to Tilfield from Colne stream and erect factories and put up model houses and—

Well, grandpa is ninety-three now, and he bought a new auto last week, because grandma's getting pretty feeble and the old one looked out of date. As for Tilfield, what with the increasing value of real estate and the life of the town, we're going to hang on as long as we can do so.

Oh, yes, about that hundred thousand. What grandpa meant was that he had that to give away, besides a cool half-million invested. He divided up among us, and Paul and Lucy had their third baby last week.

Here's hoping he'll round out the century!

CRUELEST ASSASSIN KNOWN AS "GOLA TO..."

Kin of Slain Portuguese Statesman Tells Court of Sailor's Atrocities.

A sailor, known as "Gola To..." is the principal person among those charged with the assassination of Premier Granjo and other Portuguese statesmen in the revolution on October 19.

He admits that he accompanied other soldiers and sailors in the raid on the statesmen's homes, but contends that he did so to save the lives of those chosen to be victims of the revolutionaries.

Confronted by the son and brother of Admiral Machado, the founder of the Portuguese republic and one of the assassinated men, he was accused by both of them as one of the most cruel and insolent of the savage group of men who broke into Santo's house and dragged him to death.

A similar scene occurred when Bertha da Maja, widow of Commander Carlos da Maja, another victim, was brought face to face with the sailor in court. Pointing at him, she burst into sobs and cried:

"There stands my husband's assassin. When the others hesitated, while on my knees before them, holding my baby in my arms, I implored them to spare my husband's life, that was the least there, seeing they were inclined to mercy, shouted at them and pushed my husband into their midst, asking them if they were going to let loose the man who sent them to Africa for years before. And they took him away and murdered him."

HAS CONTROL STATION FOR AERIAL EXPRESS

Standing high above the buildings of London is a huge tower known as the air traffic control tower of the London air station. From this tower the wireless operator can communicate with any air express flying between England and the coast. The controller in his lofty perch gets a clear view of the aerodrome and surrounding country. He can communicate with the aerodromes on the ground by megaphone and in the air by wireless phone. He can by the use of the wireless guide an express down to safety even though the whole district be enshrouded in fog or mist.

Very lights, which were used to signal with during the war are being put to a new use. This shows the controller on one of the balconies firing a Very light pistol to signal to a passing express.

STEER GOES ON RAMPAGE

Brooklyn Policeman Lassoes Beast in Wild West Fashion.

"I have been attacked by a bull," said a feminine voice over the wire to the lieutenant on desk duty at the Greenpoint Avenue station, Brooklyn.

"What do you mean 'bull,' a cop?" inquired the lieutenant.

"No," she replied, "a kind of cow with horns."

Patrolman Ellsworth Lloyd, who admitted experience on a Western ranch, was hurried to the foot of Meeker avenue, whence the call came.

One look was enough. There was a steer running wildly about. It had broken from a herd of 60 at the Newton Creek boat landing. Pedestrians were rushing for doorways and all manner of hiding places.

Lloyd got a clothesline, lassoed the steer and tied it to a telegraph pole until a representative of the Lieberman Brothers, abattoir owners at Johnson and Morgan avenues, claimed the animal and led it away to slaughter.

Boy Dies After Push Out of Bed.

William D. Saunders, fifteen years old, a student in Hamilton college, N. Y., has died as the result of being pushed out of bed by a fraternity brother. The lad received a fractured skull. He did not feel the effects of the fall until about two days after the prank. He was the youngest student in the college.

J. M. SCHAEFFER DIED AT NOON

Had Been Critically Ill During Most of Six Weeks Since Wife Died—Had Spent Most of Life With Bank of Which He Was Cashier.

Joseph M. Schaeffer, cashier of the State of New York National Bank, with which he had been connected since he was a young man, died about noon today at his home, No. 206 Washington avenue, aged 68 years.

Mr. Schaeffer had not been in robust health for some time, having been treated with physicians for an affection of the heart during the past year, but his health was seriously impaired by the unexpected death of his wife about six weeks ago, since which time he had been ill, his condition being critical most of the time.

Mr. Schaeffer spent practically a lifetime in the State of New York National Bank, having entered its employ as clerk when he was a young man. He was thoroughly acquainted with banking and with the bank's business for a period of many years and had served it faithfully. He possessed the entire confidence not only of the officers and directors of the bank and its depositors, but of the community at large, and frequently was called on to serve as treasurer and trustee of various funds raised by voluntary subscriptions.

For a number of years he was a trustee and secretary of the Ulster County Savings Institution. He was deeply interested in the Red Cross and for many years served as treasurer of the Ulster County Branch and also as treasurer and custodian of various special funds raised by the Red Cross during the war and at various times before and since for special relief of sufferers in different parts of the world.

Socially, Mr. Schaeffer was one of the most likable and companionable of men. He was even tempered, sound of judgment regarding men and business, always ready to help to the full extent of his ability in every worthy cause and had a kindly greeting and pleasant word for everyone. His home life was ideal and the unexpected death of his wife was a shock from which he never rallied.

Since 1897 Mr. Schaeffer has been a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 16, Free and Accepted Masons, and had held several offices in the lodge. For a number of years he was one of its trustees. He also took an active interest in fireman matters and for many years had served as trustee of Wiltwyck Hose Company. For several years he had served as a member of its finance committee. In all his positions of public trust Mr. Schaeffer commanded respect and admiration for his sterling integrity and sound judgment. He was a member of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Mr. Schaeffer was born in Kingston and was a son of the late Alexander Schaeffer, who for many years conducted a harness store on North Front street. He is survived by one daughter, Miss Mary A. Schaeffer, and one brother, William Schaeffer of this city.

EAST AND WEST CLASH OVER CANAL.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 1—West was ready to clash with the east here today when the 17th annual convention of the National Rivers & Harbors Congress opened its session.

The feature of today's session was to be the debate this afternoon between Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas, representing the agricultural west, and Gov. Nathan L. Miller, of New York, of the industrial east, on the merits of the proposed St. Lawrence waterways project. Allen favors the widening of the St. Lawrence River to enable Great Lakes boats to reach the Atlantic, while Miller favors the development of the New York barge canal between Buffalo and Albany, thus permitting lakes shipping to reach the Atlantic via the Hudson River.

The Rev. C. H. Polhemus preached in the evening from these words, "And Whosoever Shall Compel Thee To Go One Mile, Go With Him Twain." Matt. 5-41. Proper Way to Display Flag.

When the American flag is hung as a banner the union, or field of stars, should be in the upper left hand corner. When hung with stripes perpendicular the union should be in the right-hand corner. When hung from a rope stretched from building to building across the street, on streets running north and south, the union should fly to the east, on streets running east and west, the union should fly to the north. When hung from a rope stretched from the house to a tree in the yard the union should fly toward the street.

Something Doing.

The job is what counts. The world respects the man who works. It has small use or respect for the man who hunts because he finds himself above the job that is offered him. The man who produces something—even though it be nothing more than a day's work at the bottom of a trench, is of more importance to the world than he who labors for a kid glove situation.—Los Angeles Times.

WARNS VOYAGERS WHO GO TO SEA

Where Uncle Sam Keeps Watch for Ships and Storms.

CAPE HENRY IS VITAL POINT

Government Observatory Gathers Weather News All Along Eastern Coast—More Ships Pass There Than Any One Spot in America—First to Report German Raiders in Our Waters and Also Famous Shipwrecks—Army and Navy Aviators Watch Reports.

At Cape Henry, Va., where more ships pass than at any one spot in America, the government maintains an observatory and weather bureau that furnishes information to ships and individuals from one end of the country to the other.

Marine men say J. Frank Newsome, chief of the Cape Henry bureau, probably sees more ships in a year than any other man in the United States. There are four assistants to Mr. Newsome, and at least one of them is on duty every minute of the day and night.

Some idea of the number of ships that pass Cape Henry in a year may be had from the figures of 1921 when 16,706 vessels passed in and out of the Virginia capes. In addition to this vast fleet hundreds of other vessels were sighted off the capes.

The government station at Cape Henry is one of the most important, if not the most important, of similar stations in America. In addition to reporting the passing in and out of ships, the Cape Henry station is important for the meteorological work done there and for the indispensable service it renders ship owners and the public, and also the army and navy and coast guard.

Their Weather Eye Out

Mr. Newsome and his experts collect weather observations from along the coast as far south as Hatteras and as far north as New Jersey. This information is sent broadcast over the ocean, is furnished to ships in port and along the coast and to the army and navy and coast guard.

Neither army nor navy aviators will venture a flight along the coast without first obtaining from Cape Henry information on weather conditions.

Cape Henry has such a reputation for accurate weather reports that information is eagerly sought there by ship masters and ship owners from Boston to Florida.

Cape Henry also furnishes the only means of telegraphic communication with the outside world for isolated hamlets and settlements along the coast. Ocracoke island, one of the most picturesque and interesting places on the coast, would be shut off from the outside world so far as telegraphic communication is concerned if the government did not operate a telegraph line along the coast from Norfolk to Hatteras and to Ocracoke.

Ocracoke has a population of about 800 people and there are a like number at Portsmouth, and other coast towns. Several times in years gone by, when severe storms swept the coast there were grave fears felt for the inhabitants of these towns. Commercial wires went down and even the government wires were blown to the ground. It was the seacoast wires, however, that always brought the first news of the safety of the inhabitants of the towns in danger.

Keep Tab on Ships.

One of the most interesting and perhaps the most important duty that Cape Henry observers perform is reporting the arrival and departure of ships, the sighting of vessels, and the transmission by signal of important messages to passing steamers. Every day, and sometimes several times a day, the observers at Cape Henry are called upon to transmit messages to passing ships. Sometimes it is orders from ship owners. Sometimes it is a message of joy for the captain or some officer or member of a ship's crew. Sometimes it is a message for a passenger on the passing steamer.

In the daytime the message is transmitted to a ship by code flags. At night Morse flashlights are used. During the World war the Cape Henry station was one of the busiest places in the world. Thousands of ships passed in and out of the capes and important messages were delivered [illegible] the day and night. During 1918, 23,897 ships passed the Virginia capes. This is the greatest number since the Cape Henry observatory was established.

Before America entered the World war, some of the most important news of the activities of the Germans on this side of the Atlantic was given to the world by the observer at Cape Henry.

It was the observers there who first reported the arrival of the Deutschland, the first merchant submarine that ever crossed the Atlantic. For almost two weeks a lone tugboat stood guard off Cape Henry awaiting the arrival of the Deutschland to escort her through the Virginia capes, and up the Chesapeake bay to Baltimore.

It was Cape Henry that first reported the arrival of the German raiders, Kronprinz Wilhelm and the Eitel Frederick, and first to report the arrival of the captured liner Appam. This vessel passed Cape Henry in the charge of a German crew from the raider Moewe.

Wreck Reports.

From Cape Henry also has come first reports of shipwrecks along the

$150,000 ROBBERY AT ARDSLEY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ardsley On Hudson, N. Y., March 1—The police of this and surrounding towns as well as those of New York city are searching today for robbers who entered the residence of Henry Graves, 3rd, and stole $150,000 worth of jewelry and liquor.

The robbery occurred Tuesday night while the family was at dinner but it did not become public until today. The gems consisted for the most part of two flexible diamond studded bracelets, worth $50,000. The robbers gained entrance to Mrs. Graves's bedroom with a ladder. After ransacking the chamber, the thieves made their way to the wine cellar without arousing the family.

Mr. Graves is an officer of the New York Trust Co., and is a multi-millionaire. His wife, who was Margaret Dixon, of Morristown, N. J., is wealthy in her own right.

American Playing Cards.

Early American playing cards, according to an article in the American Printer, showed the national antipathy to kings and queens by presenting, instead of the conventional figures with which playing cards are now adorned, the following pictures: "President" of hearts, George Washington; of diamonds, John Adams; of clubs, Benjamin Franklin; of spades, Lafayette. The "queens" were Venus, Fortune, Ceres and Minerva. The knaves were represented, appropriately reflecting the general feeling among the whites, by pictures of Indian chiefs.—Outlook.

CHANDLER SIX

Notable Car at Low Cost

THE extent to which the public has been educated in motor car values, never had more striking proof than in the instant acceptance of the new Chandler car.

In all sections, urban or rural, the verdict of approval has been unanimous.

Motorists who thronged 'round the chassis were quick to point out the increased depth of frame, the staunchness of the rear axle, the transmission brake and other features of advanced construction.

Visitors also displayed a surprising ability to distinguish between genuine and solidly built cars, with richest appointments, and those where quality had been subordinated to make a lower selling figure.

Despite depressed conditions, Chandler retail sales for January were the biggest in Chandler history.

Much has been accomplished; more than people are aware, so gradual has been the advance. How noiseless is the growth of corn! LODGE COMES OUT FOR BONUS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 1.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican, leader of the senate, in an open letter to a constituent today, announced that he was in favor of the soldier bonus.

As one who voted to send millions of American boys to risk their lives in battle, he said, he believed the promise to provide them with the compensation they deserved, should be kept.

Senator Lodge stated that "in view of the fact that the government during the war relieved a large number of men from military service in order that they might take part in essential industries, where, of course, they received the high wages of the war period," it seemed to him "that there was more ground for the demand for the bonus than was usually admitted."

"Disbarred by age of any possibility of personal service, I felt very keenly the responsibility which I incurred in voting for measures which sent other and younger men to venture their lives on the field of battle, and this feeling or sentiment, if you choose to call it so, makes it very difficult for me now to vote against any reasonable measure for the benefit of the soldiers of the war especially for those who were woundd or disabled in the service, because I have such a sharp consciousness that I was one of those who were directly responsible for sending them to serve their country and encounter the shock of war in France or Flanders when I was unable to go myself.

Have Improved the World.

Every heart that has beat strong and cheerfully has left a hopeful impulse behind it in the world and bettered the tradition of mankind.—Stevenson.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. Fanny Mackey Willers, a former resident of Kingston, died Tuesday at her home in Newburgh. She is survived by her husband, Henry Willers.

Sophia Nelson, wife of the late William Nelson, died in New York city Monday, February 27. The funeral will be held from the Bloomington Reformed Church on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment in the Bloomington Cemetery.

Ludwig Ollry, father of John Ollry, president of the village of Rosendale, died on Saturday morning at the home of his son after an illness of many months. Mr. Ollry had just passed his 88th birthday. His remains were taken to Brooklyn on Sunday, where the services were held. The burial was also in Brooklyn.

Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock the body of Father Briody will be conveyed from the rectory to the church and will lie in state throughout Thursday night. The solemn requiem Mass will be sung promptly at 10 o'clock Friday morning. The children of the school will participate in the procession. The Divine Office will be sung by the priests in this vicinity.

James H. Duffy died Tuesday at his home, No. 336 Foxhall avenue. He is survived by his wife and one sister. Mr. Duffy was employed by the West Shore railroad for a number of years. The funeral will be held on Thursday morning, March 2, at 8:30 o'clock from the late home and at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's Church, where a requiem Mass will be celebrated for the repose of his soul. Interment in the Mt. Calvary cemetery, New York city.

John Walsh, 50 years of age, who had been superintendent of the farm belonging to Dr. A. E Belgean of Marlborough for sometime, was stricken suddenly with heart disease Monday morning and died before medical aid could reach him. Mr. Walsh was on duty at the time. He called to one of the men on the place but expired before anyone could reach him. He is survived by the following sisters: Mrs. George Suiter of Marlborough, Mrs. Elmer Steele of Oneida, Mrs. Thomas O'Brien and Mrs. William Welch of Poughkeepsie; Mrs. Roy Kugler of New Jersey and Mrs. John DeVinney of New York. Mr. Walsh was a brother of the late Mrs. John W. Barry and Mrs. Arden Truax, who died recently. The funeral will be held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Thomas O'Brien of 144 Church street, Poughkeepsie, Thursday morning at 9:30, and from St. Mary's Church at 10 o'clock. Interment in Cavalry Cemetery, Poughkeepsie.

Funeral services for Gilbert Drake were held from his late home on Monday afternoon and were largely attended by sorrowful relatives and friends. The Rev. F. Coons, pastor of the Highland M. E. Church, officiated. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, which showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The bearers were Vincent Jordon, Lewis Thorne, George Green, Corsie Gunzalus, Orange Ingraham and Edward Tubbs. Interment in Highland Cemetery. The K. of P. Lodge of Highland conducted the service at the grave.

He Monopolized Persecution.

There is no doubt that Nero could be shown to have been a victim of newspaper persecution in ancient Rome.—New York Evening Post.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

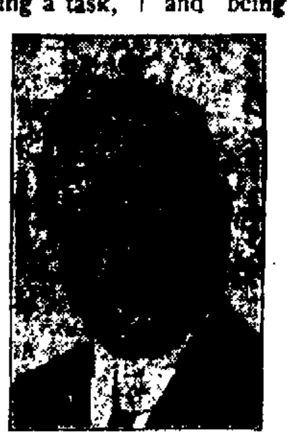
In a recent statement outlining his rules for success, Marshal Foch gave some excellent advice which each of us can apply to good purpose in our daily lives. He stated first of all that, before beginning a task, one should study it carefully and make well-thought-out plans. After determining the plan, then decide on method instead of depending on what seems best suited at the moment. Then, above everything else, have singleness of purpose and a stubborn will.



This is the formula of success that one might expect from a man who has planned great military campaigns and whose mental processes, both by instinct and training, have been along the lines of strict discipline and exactness.

But they can with equal effectiveness be applied in the development of one's personal career for they embody such essential qualities of thrift practice as foresight, precision and will-power.

Those who follow closely the plan laid down by Foch will be practicers of thrift, especially in the development of that greatest requisite of success—determination.

To be thrifty requires constant use of the will. One cannot lead a careless life, yielding to every impulse to waste time and money and being buffeted about by every caprice, and at the same time, retain the elements of self-development.

It was one of the favorite rules of the late James J. Hill that the person who could not save money could never hope for any great success in life. It was his belief that saving money was a test of one's strength of character and that those who lacked this strength were wanting in all the essentials of individual advancement.

And it was much this same thought that Foch had in mind when he said that singleness of purpose and a stubborn will were among the great essentials of success in life.

Thrift and success must ever go hand in hand.

Let every young man and woman in the world today bear this constantly in mind.

TOLD OF KITCHENER'S DEATH.

Interesting Story That Has Recently Appeared in Book Published by English Author.

Lady Angela Forbes in her book "Memories and Base Details," says that Lord Kitchener was interested in spiritualism, and that he was undoubtedly not only interested, but a believer in it:

"Count Hamon, better known as Cheiro, told me a story which to the incredulous may only appear as coincidence, but cannot fail to be interesting.

"Count Hamon was a friend of Kitchener's, and in reading his horoscope had, apparently, always told him that his death would be a sudden one, but that he need not anticipate danger in the field of battle. Just before Lord K. went abroad, Count H. went to the war office, and K. showed him a little blue vase, which he had once given him as a mascot, and told him that he always kept it on the table. He asked Count H. if there was anything he could do for him before he left the country. The count replied in the negative, but K. told him there was one thing he would do—if anything happened to him he would give him a sign. At the very hour the Hampshire went down, Count Hamon was in the music-room of his house in the country, at one end of which was a large hatchment, securely nailed to the wall. For no reason at all it fell with a crash, and might have been cleft in two by an ax, Count Hamon guessed instantly that something had happened to Lord Kitchener, and that this must be the promised sign."

Gentleness Always Best.

Gentleness is far more successful in all its enterprises than violence; indeed violence generally frustrates its own purpose, while gentleness scarcely ever fails.—Locke.

Snow Banner.

This is a bannerlike stream of snow blown into the air from a mountain peak, often having a pinkish color and extending horizontally for several miles across the sky.

Of the New-Mown Hay.

The New Zealand black pine, says the American Forestry Magazine, has a faint aroma suggesting new-mown hay.

They Are Rare.

Cynical Definition.

"A bachelor," remarks a disappointed lady, "is a man who lives alone with the one he loves."

"Where There's a Will."

You've got to get up every morning with determination if you are going to bed at night with any satisfaction.

ARE PLAYING PART

Creatures of the Wild Use Advertising Tactics.

In Love-Making and the Warding Off of Enemies, Employment of Publicity Is Common.

That creatures of the wild know the value of advertising just as well as do human beings is indicated by signs that may be seen by any one who goes into the country.

Often this advertising may be just a dodge on the part of the insect or animal to avoid the attentions of another creature who has designs upon him as a delectable dinner morsel.

This peculiarity of nature is noticeable in regard to the butterfly, which is an ingenious little publicity merchant. Certain kinds of butterflies have noxious qualities which are not to the liking of birds, but there are other species which are just the reverse. The latter consequently assume the colorings of the former and so, by advertising their undesirability as food, manage to preserve their lives, says an English writer.

The same tactics are adopted by beetles, but it is from bird and animal life that we get the best examples. Certain kinds of snipe, for instance, set up a peculiar shriek as soon as they catch sight of a shooting party, and this is kept up until they have advertised far and wide that the gunners are on the lookout.

Wild sheep, also, are clever in this respect. They need only to see one of their number at attention, with head up and ears pricked forward, to become suspicious and ready for flight. Again, when deer register the presence of a foe, they send a signal to every member of the band to be cautious.

The wild bellow of the lion is often uttered not because he is angered and ready to fight. He knows that to keep away his foes he has but to remind them of his power, and he does so by proclaiming his strength far and wide.

With just the same object does the rattlesnake shake its castanets. The sound of them reaches the ears of his foes and, awed with the dreadful warning of the snake's latent power, they rapidly disappear.

But it is at the mating season in the wild that the full power of publicity is brought to bear. There is a general flaunting of color and parade of strength, with the object of proving to a possible mate how much more desirable than his rival each one is.

This competition for favor is particularly outstanding in bird life, and the display of colors and ornaments to catch the female eye is carried to perfection. The great peacock, while conscious of his beauty, at the same time is aware that his rival may be just as beautiful, and to oust him from favor he tidies himself up and, as it were, puts on his Sunday best.

Birds of paradise wave their wonderful silky plumes, and the humming-bird with great skill flashes his gems among the flowers, making a perfect color-scheme.

Other birds, less fortunate in the matter of color, find the power of song a great factor in gaining favor; so these songsters chant their sweetest melodies or chirrup and whistle as best they can.

Even the lumbering alligator knows how to advertise, and, in searching for a bride, does his best to stage a fight so that the lady of his choice may see him come forth the victor!

The same applies, writes Ernest Ingersoll, in "The Wit of the Wild," to lions and tigers, and even the monkey, so if you see any of those fellows vainly strutting about at a zoo, don't laugh. They know what they are doing!

Positively Devastating.

Trying as it is for a girl to discover that her idol has feet of clay, it is worse for her to find that he has a head of bone.—Boston Transcript.

MORE BOUQUETS FOR LOS KAMP RECITAL.

Through an inadvertence, a very interesting part of the program of Miss Los Kamp's pupils' recital on Saturday afternoon was not included in the Freeman's report as given Tuesday evening. The groups of songs sung by Miss Edith Holmes, Miss Elizabeth Bishop and Miss Helen Luther were so admirably rendered as to call forth enthusiastic applause and since the recital many well deserved compliments have been given these young ladies.

Also Miss Los Kamp was presented with a beautiful gift of flowers from the choir of the church, the presentation being made by her little namesake, Virginia Brown. Furthermore, in recognition of her many kindnesses and skill as a musician, Miss Beulah Babcock, accompanist, was presented with a bouquet of lovely flowers, the gift of the pupils of Miss Los Kamp's class.

"United We Stand, Divided We Fall."

The phrase is the motto of the state of Kentucky. Mark Twain proudly refers to this fact. "The armorial crest of my own state consisted of two dissolute bears holding up the head of a dead and gone cask between them and making the pertinent remark: 'United We Stand, Divided We Fall.'"

THE COTTAGE GARDENER

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF GARDEN SPACE

The Combination Fruit and Vegetable Garden. Strawberries Are Grown Under the Grapevines Which Are Trained on a High Trellis. Young Fruit Trees Also Are Growing in This Garden.

USE EVERY INCH OF GARDEN SOIL

"Intensive Farming" Applies as Well to Small Plot as to the Large Tract.

EASY TO GROW VEGETABLES

Careful Gardener Can Find Room for Additional Plants if Best Judgment Is Used in Planning Seed Bed.

"Intensive farming" long ago won the O. K. of the practical agriculturist who found that it was to his financial interest to make two or more grow where one grew before.

The same rule applies, or should apply, to the cottage gardener the fellow who has only a few feet of space, compared with the three or four hundred acre farm.

It is just as essential that the back yard "fence corners" be made to produce as it is that the formerly unused places on the farm be brought into a state of production.

In the back yard of the majority of small homes, in both country and city, there are spaces that have been neglected because the man of the house was not exactly in the mood of spading it up when planting time arrived. Spading time should extend from the time the one crop was garnered the previous fall to the time when the soil is actually prepared for the next season. Spading in the fall is not a bad idea. The leaves and other fertilizer producing growths can be turned under and also made to work for you.

Value of Rich Soil.

If you are fortunate enough to obtain a load or two of stable manure, of course it is better to turn this under in the fall and allow it to be well rotted by spring and not blown away by the winter winds. Although much manure has a large quantity of straw mixed with it, the straw also enriches the soil.

With the ground well cared for in the fall before the freezing weather starts, it is in condition to be brought into the best producing state in the early spring, when little, if any, spading will be necessary to make the seed bed—and the worst of the work is over and the home gardener is happy with his prospects.

Then—when actual planting time comes—when the ground is warm and there seems to be no danger of frost—that is the time to make the most of the situation.

No plants will do their best if crowded, but there are many vegetables that will do well by being planted close together. Those that require most space should have all they need—but it is well to remember that some of the small vegetables that grow close to the ground and are out of the way early can be grown between the larger plants, such as tomatoes and beans, which develop slowly.

When Crowding Can Be Done.

By exercising careful judgment a little more crowding may be done in some instances than has been done by many gardeners, and more intercropping—planting between the later developing plants—may be carried out, much to the gratification of the gardener.

It is a great pleasure to the proud gardener to see the young plants shooting up in every nook and corner of his back yard—no weeds—stakes for the more rapid growing plants—everything looking prosperous.

With reasonable weather conditions it is just as easy to have a splendid garden as it is a poor one—and not much experience is required to obtain the desired results. Just a little plant study and the knowledge of your soil then you can be sure of a garden that will satisfy your table. If the garden is properly cared for throughout the season. There is no greater pleasure than that of growing a good garden—one that is the envy of your neighbors and friends.

WHEN TO PLANT SWEET CORN

Seed Should Not Be Sown Until Ground Is Warm and No Danger From Frost.

Sweet corn should be planted on rich land and cultivated the same as field corn. Plant the seed as soon as the soil is warm in the spring, and make successive plantings every two or three weeks until late summer. The same results can be obtained to some extent by planting early, medium and late varieties. Plant the seeds about two inches deep in drills three feet apart and thin to a single stalk every 10 to 14 inches.

Sweet corn, which is so in the South passes so quickly from the milk to the dough stage that care should be exercised to gather the crop just at the right time, in order to secure the most satisfactory results. The flavor of sweet corn depends upon its sugar of maturity and the method of handling the product from the plant to the table. Sweet corn loses its sugar content very rapidly after being removed from the stalk. It should, therefore, be picked only a few hours, and preferably a few minutes, in advance of the time when it is to be placed in the pot.

Varieties recommended: For early corn Golden Bantam and Adams Early are suggested, and for main crop late varieties Black Mexican or White Mexican, Country Gentleman and Stowell's Evergreen. The last-named variety has the largest ears and is the most productive—United States Department of Agriculture.

GROWING CELERY

Growing celery for fall use [illegible] bed method can not be expected to [illegible] crispness and delicacy of flavor, according to bona fide tests of the Ohio experiment station. Growing the various selections of [illegible] plants of this [illegible] to be turned in the small garden from November till mid-winter. For this crop a bed four feet wide and as long as desired is selected. A ditch is dug six inches deep, full width of the bed, a spadeful on the bottom, etc., with three inches of stable manure and then with three inches of the soil saved for the purpose. Soaking the ground causes it to settle. If desired, radishes, lettuce or any early crop may be grown before planting celery.

GARDENS MUST HAVE CARE

A good start for a garden is often lost about the time the weeds appear. No matter how carefully the garden may be planted or how rich the soil or costly the seeds, failure will surely follow if the proper cultivation and care are not given during the growing season.

Use FREEMAN advertising regularly and conservatively and results will surely follow.

BASKETBALL AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

The high school Seniors boys emerged victorious over the Juniors 24-11.

Muller, Sears and Lehner for the high and mighties scored the most number of points, 8, 7 and 6 respectively. Levy, Case and Caunitz exhibited the intelligence gained through their high school training to the extent that they all played fine games.

The Juniors jogged around the floor completely at a loss to find the more up-to-date opponent and had it not been for Winkky, the center for the third year men, who played center for the Manual Evening High School Midgets of New York the outcome would have, as far as the score is concerned, more in favor of the Seniors. As it was Goetcheus and Messinger scored the remaining points. Kantrowitz was not substituted until the latter period of play but when he was put in his playing was enough to make some of the regulars blush.

The Freshmen again gained a victory over the Juniors Tuesday afternoon by the exciting score of 24-25.

Goetcheus scored 13 points from the penalty line.

Kanzer and Bruck gave the Freshmen victory, scoring 10 and 13 points respectively.

BUT HE GOT DATES MIXED

And So a Wily, Unscrupulous Russian Bachelor Was Forced to "Kill Off" His Family.

Necessity has sharpened the wits of the Russians and they discover most ingenious devices to profit at the expense of the government.

A shrewd physician in Petrograd who was a bachelor with a hearty appetite and a small income, induced the president of the house committee where he resided to give him a certificate saying he was married. In this way he procured a double ration.

Soon his imaginary wife fell ill and he got a milk card on the strength of it. Later a baby came to bless this fictitious union, and he was entitled to additional delicacies as a result. Unfortunately, he got his dates mixed up and announced the arrival of three children inside of six months.

An investigation was started, upon which an epidemic broke out in his family, which carried away, inside of two days, his wife, two daughters and little boy.

It was a dreadful massacre of paper. But it saved the physician, who got off undetected.—J. Kessel in Figaro, Paris.
